Love 17 Years and Other Stories 5~5 Love, Jea.BRASILIA (Reuters) - The Communist Party is claiming partial victory in Brazil's presidential race, as the count of ballots in Sao Paulo showed it had scored an upset victory over far-right candidate Jair Bolsonaro in the first round on Sunday. Supporters of the candidato do PT and Lula in a section of downtown, Brasilia, Brazil August 22, 2018. REUTERS/Ueslei Marcelino The count centers on the 5.4 million votes nationwide that are still being counted, but if the trend continues, the vote will not be enough to keep Bolsonaro out of the second round on Oct. 28. Both candidates had expressed confidence in the count, but there was no indication that the PT could pull off an upset. The count on Brazil's second-largest city, São Paulo, showed the main opposition candidate, Ciro Gomes, with a slight lead, but there are still some 6.7 million votes to be counted. [nL8N1BC1XW] The São Paulo ballot count, which showed Gomes leading in the state of São Paulo, matched projections made by the PSDB party, the largest vote-getter of the 2018 ballot, and neither candidate received the 50 percent of votes needed to avoid the run-off. "No one realized just how strong the PT would be," said Milton Massaro, 55, a polling place worker in São Paulo. "The party is claiming a partial victory." In the first round on Sunday, Bolsonaro, a former army captain, was accused of displaying misogynistic, homophobic and racist views. He accused his detractors of spreading fake news during the vote count. Gomes, 69, was mayor of the Brazilian city of Rio de Janeiro from 2003 to 2016 and was fourth in Brazil's 2013 presidential ballot. Bolsonaro's campaign said the candidate would "continue the fight against corruption and impunity, defend democratic values, and strengthen Brazil's foreign policy. ♦

ABSTRACT Gap junctional communication (GJC) is thought to play an important role in regulating bone cell activity and proliferation. The present study examined the effects of a decrease in GJC on the regulation of osteoblast proliferation, differentiation, and matrix mineralization. The results show that a decrease in GJC caused by connexin43 (Cx43) mutation led to a significantly decreased level of mineralization and an increase in the proliferation of osteoblasts at all stages of differentiation. In addition, the differentiation of osteoblasts to a mature osteoblast is impaired due to the increase in proliferation of osteoblasts. Furthermore, the decrease in GJC caused by 3e33713323
