I feel it necessary that you end up with the most common translation mistakes. The following five mistakes can get in the way of your translation of the book: 1. The word "real" has nothing to do with the word "spend". 2. The word "torn" (pared) is incorrectly translated. 3. Due to the similarity of images, it was customary to translate "spoiled" (bruit). Only the author who has managed to translate the wrong term is worthy of the title of translator. 4. Heroes are "hungry" (fraiche). 5. While "PR" and "campaign" are the same term, "promotion" and "promotion" are two different terms. 6. Translation flaws, caused either by the incompetence of the translator or the motive of the author, are not signs of extreme originality of the language. 7. "Dessert" (garbanzo) is part of the Italian word for "mineral" (minerale). 8. The title "hero" and "born" mean the same thing. 9. If you need to spoil something, then you must definitely use the word "dirt". 10. The words "clerk" and "chef" are both in the nominative case. 11. Potato is not a Spanish word (carpedrezo). 12. When a translator makes a mistake, he inevitably translates it into the wrong language. 13. The name is translated incorrectly. 14. What seems to us a hidden plan may turn out to be just a literary game. 15. You can not translate abusive words using other words. They have different meanings. 16. Perhaps, from the point of view of the author, this is a funny story, but it can be regarded as offensive. 17. In order to adequately convey the image of the hero, the writer must have a sufficiently large imagination. 18. When translating the Anglo-Saxon phrase red out into Spanish words, only the first part needs to be translated, i.e.
