WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (Reuters) - U.S. Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden on Sunday condemned any potential criminal prosecutions of Biden and his son Hunter, and said he believes Hunter Biden's work as a board member for a Ukrainian gas company should have been publicly disclosed during the 2016 U.S. election campaign. Slideshow (2 images) Speaking during a visit to a New York charity dinner for Democratic presidential candidate Pete Buttigieg, Biden denied that he was being investigated by federal authorities. "I've been investigated by the FBI more than once," Biden said, adding that he was a close friend of the former FBI director J. Edgar Hoover. Biden said he was open to helping the FBI investigate Hunter Biden's work with Ukrainian gas company Burisma Holdings, if the matter were to arise. Hunter Biden in July pleaded guilty to a federal corruption charge, admitting to using his position on the board of a Ukrainian energy company to secure the dismissal of a prosecutor looking into the company's activities. He has agreed to cooperate with the U.S. government. The younger Biden also has been under scrutiny by Democratic Party officials and U.S. media over a $1.5 billion deal he struck in 2014 when his father was vice president to help China acquire a 49 percent stake in a Chinese-owned company that owned a Ukrainian natural gas company. Biden told the donors and supporters gathered at the event that the Chinese company had been using Hunter Biden's business ties to the vice president as a way to gain influence in the administration. Hunter Biden has said he did nothing wrong and insists the younger Biden's work for the Chinese-controlled company should have been disclosed as a potential conflict of interest for his father's administration.
