I guess for the example code I posted, I was using a different way to accomplish the task. With that, you would need to check if your container had a subcontainer (which is true for Excel and any other container I imagine), and for 2 levels deep, just check each level. Regardless, it will return True for empty containers. Just something I found as I was researching this. It seems there's a couple ways to do it with DLR. Figured I would share 570a42141b
