KEYMACRO is a handy application for Windows programmers. It allows users to expand existing macros, add to them, and modify them on the fly. The program is also very easy to use: just choose your desired macro, and click Edit to perform all the necessary operations. The included macro language is mostly intended for numerical operations and checks, but you can also create customized macros if you would like. Each macro has a number of customizable parameters. The parameters can be set up to your liking, and they may be chosen either automatically, or by you directly. Users can change the keyboard shortcut settings of the macros, which is a very useful feature for most programmers. When you create a new macro, you have the choice of setting its default parameters, or you can do a local, rather than a global, search for them. The program supports both command-line and GUI installations, and it includes a friendly user interface that will make any user feel at home while working with it. The interface is both user-friendly and easy to read, and there are also some tutorials available to help you get started. KEYMACRO may not look like much, but it has a lot of potential, considering that it provides such a simple interface to users who are somewhat experienced in programming. If you want to have a fun time with macros, this is the program for you!

Extreme Tux Racer Description: Extreme Tux Racer is an award-winning physics-based racing game where you are flying a little tuxedo-wearing penguin named Tux, and you are trying to get the highest score possible. Extreme Tux Racer features dozens of ships that you can race against each other, and if you win, you get some special bonuses. The game offers three different control schemes, and each can be switched on the fly by using the mouse wheel, the keyboard, or the accelerometer. The accelerometer is highly recommended. It allows you to tilt the device and move the game along. When you tilt the device to the right, for example, you can control the ships left, and vice versa. The accelerometer allows you to race along the streets and to go off to any direction, even though you cannot go on the ceiling, unfortunately. Furthermore, you can use the accelerometer to do tricks. By tilting the device downwards, for example, you can jump. The best part is that you have to tilt the device to the left or right before you can do a jump. The 77a5ca646e
