To start playing today, simply visit: Tuesday, February 24, 2014 I was speaking with Brad, our Managing Editor, about a political figure who, for no apparent reason, has been elected President of the United States. There are many candidates out there, but let me start with one relatively well-known figure... actually, it was a former presidential candidate, and in fact, the first Jewish-American president. In my mind, the election was a real snooze-fest. An investigation was initiated into the Bill Clinton impeachment, and Whitewater became the big story. Given that Clinton was a Democrat, what should have been the big story was what had gone wrong with the affair, not who the CIA had the dirt on - poor Clinton. The Washington Post, smelling blood, ran a front page headline that read: William Jefferson Clinton Is In Danger. This had to be one of the dumbest headlines in Washington Post history. When I asked Brad, "Why does this political figure have a chance of winning the Presidency?" He simply stated, "He is perceived as tough, unlike all the other Democrats. I thought to myself: "Yeah, but he's not perceived as tough on the issues." Brad added, "This is the year of the Tea Party." I asked, "What makes this race a Tea Party race?" He looked at me and said, "A lot of people just resent the 'yeah, but...' That's what you do in Washington." Me: "Ah, it seems to me that 'yeah, but...' was what George W. Bush did to describe his opponents." Brad replied: "Yeah, and you can make the same argument about the Nixons." "Any doubt that the President is not perceived as being tough on the issues, would 09e8f5149f
