I've been trying to get these ideas down for a while. I've been writing stuff down on the back of old receipts and on scraps of paper all over the place, and my handwriting isn't great. I've been trying to do these on photoshop, but the idea of making a page and then having to go in and carefully remove the things I've drawn or the words I've written is a pain. I tried cutting up one of my notebooks and adhering it to a page, but I'm afraid it's too ugly. I've thought of making a template (using one of those accordion things) and putting it all in a book, but I just can't face the feeling of having to read all that every night before I go to sleep. I'm all right at typing things in, but the idea of making a template of a page about eight inches by ten inches and cutting out every little thing that I've drawn or written is going to take hours. Maybe I can put the whole thing on a cd and read it. It still will feel like work though. I think I'll be able to write this one down on my computer. My reviews have gotten quite boring the last few months! laughs Blair Cox I'd just like to say that, for those of you who don't know, Preston left a message on my answering machine this morning. He called me up, asking if I fancied a drink after work today and I replied that I would love to, even though it was Sunday. He didn't seem to notice anything weird about it, and I'm really excited to go and hang out with him at his house in a couple of hours 09e8f5149f

Traffic Light is a fun application designed to decorate your desktop with an animated traffic light. Traffic Light is completely portable. Very handy for the kids.I usually have my monitor set up in way that I have a white background, with the white part of the image showing through when my desktop starts to load. I used to do it because I thought the kids were going to have a lot of fun seeing the image I was working on. Now they are just the ones who want to watch the computer load, and I save that trouble of having to always make sure the picture is off-center when I'm doing my work.
