Crooks Like Us Features Key:

Introducing the drunken old lady card game, Play & Forget

You are The Champion!

Easy but challenging to play.

Beautiful and addictive gameplay.

Peaceful and casual atmosphere.

Indepth information and tips

A game where skill matters, takes up a lot of your time and yet you can still find time to do laundry and nip to the shop

Crooks Like Us (GLU) is a player against player card game of deduction and bluff. In contrast to other card based games like Contract and Vilar Veiled it appeals to the broad range of ages, languages and hobbies. You are introduced to the world of crooks like Us and the game as a whole is also introduced to the reader. The objective of the game is to secretly describe the background to every deal and find the best-selling card in each scene. Since this is all being done secretly each player needs to find out which scene they have been assigned to and how their characters act there, this makes it naturally easy to detect how the other player is acting. A character card well known for his signature that gives insight to the player character is how you play the game.

In the end of the game you are the champ... with proof! Which do you sport? The opportunity to win a cash prize, a life timer of local fame or the glory of life like a criminal?

Start learning this unpredictable card game which one your friends will not give you the pleasure of winning.

Choose your characters, your style and your partner and you will never know what cards you get!

What's new:

: 8 Ways the Right Hires Somebody They Know This is kind of kooky and full of insider baseball, but maybe you'll never see it coming. The next time you see the Hireals say a thing like, "I'm hiring a real political professional," think about the next time you see them say something like, "I'm hiring a real politician." There is no "real" here: It's a matter of opinion, of preference, of unknown. What's constant about this word is that it's a proxy. Take a recently vacated House seat. Unpopular incumbent Republican: Pro Close childhood friend: Con Hardworking, sharp former staffer: Mildly favorable Overseas political acquaintance: Pretty decent Super-uber-close friend of a close relative who the candidate knows: Well, to be honest Politico's Burgess Everett recently explained a stark and remarkable truth about politics: In 2010 and 2014 alone, we learned that 35 percent of the top 50 House fundraising bundlers came from industries that have obvious business relationships with the office that is trying to raise money. As of the close of calendar 2014, the oil and natural gas industry donated $6.1 million to candidates. When we say that they donated, we don't mean that these companies gave out a ton of money. We mean that these donors gave a ton of money. In 2010 the top 10 federal political contributors from the oil and natural gas industry each gave about $100,000. In 2014 the top 10 GOP political contributors from this industry gave between $1.1 million and $1.5 million. Of those donors, 28 percent are people who accompanied the candidate to fundraisers. This is by no means a comprehensive list; one of the major duties of campaign fundraisers is to network across industries, and it's not a task easily supervised from a distance. But the last part of that top line is eye-opening: Neighborhoods function sort of the same way: The friend of your friend's sibling-in-law has more impact than the guy who just delivered you a pizza. These aren't just relationships that are formed through ordinary life, which is sometimes shot-through with petty jealousies and misunderstandings anyway. Instead, they're the stuff of political power: Not merely "political insiders"; not merely "politics heavyweights"; not merely

Description:

In a world where people are easily swayed by the coincidental association of their favorite stars, the crooked poltergeist Seto eliminates any preconceived judgment on the influence that his two cousins, Shuu and Taiga, can have over people. First arriving in the world as babies, in an accident of fate, Seto and his cousins were forced to survive in a world of chaos that they are still struggling to find their place in.

It is said that the reason the Seto twins chose Seto to do the title role, is that he actually resembles his former idol, Kijima Seiha, the very person who gave Seto his unusual future. It was probably just a coincidence. But it
