The quality of your image is affected by what you've changed in the different dialog boxes you choose to use in the various editing modes. Selecting a brush brush tip will give you a softer, or more natural-looking, image than a thin, hard brush. Brushes can be easily removed or put on a layer and moved around. A filter is another way to alter an image, and you can fine-tune the effects of an image with a filter. Filters can be added and used on a layer, and they can also be combined in a series of effects. Photoshop Elements 10 is a great alternative for the very cost-conscious. It is a fraction of the price of Photoshop and provides similar editing tools and features. You can download the free trials of both programs by going to Adobe.com/Download and searching for the name of the program you want to download. Each program has its uses, but the choice is largely a personal one. The most important thing to consider when choosing is how you intend to use Photoshop: whether you work with images in a store, for publicity, or for more personal work. You can use just about any program to create a layout, but to create a realistic-looking likeness, including many details like an object's shape and texture, you'll need a higher level of editing. Cameras can be used to find composition. Most are built around a certain size lens, but you can zoom out and get a macro lens to see fine details. Even with a lens, get close to your subject to get a nice perspective. If you are shooting images of someone, don't be afraid to ask for help. You can get a friend to take shots with you or, if you have a digital camera, use the live screen feed to get a second opinion. Figure 13-1 shows a good starting point for camera types and lenses. Figure 13-1: Choose the right lens for the task. If you have a better camera — even a good point-and-shoot camera — get a macro lens to add some interesting detail. Another use for a macro lens is in the jewelry making world, where you can add tiny details to the images of beads. Read more on manipulating jewelry in Chapter 19. Designing with Esthetics

Much of the work that you do in graphic design is not about factual things like facts and dates; it's about making things look nice and interesting. Photographers

Q: Which is best approach to building android app: using own layout or using android design support library? What is better approach for building android app: using own xml layout using android design support library

A: I personally use the support library a lot. It has a lot of designs and layouts out there which let's you cover a lot of use-cases. The simple reason why I like the support library is, that it doesn't bloat my code and size too much. The drawback is that it has a totally new xml layout system where the old xml layout is replaced. Because the way the application handles the different screen sizes depends on this system. But in my opinion, it's totally worth it to learn how to use the support library and how to design for android.

Pages Friday, September 13, 2013 "Flay and Esquire are very interesting food magazines with great photography. Each has a different slant and both are really good. They really make me want to cook and be creative. "The best food magazine is Real Simple. It's not fancy and it's more about normal people's food and how to cook it.

They have great recipes that are easy to make, and great photography. It's a joy to sit down and work on a recipe from the magazine." "I like Good Living Magazine. It has recipes from around the country, tips for how to make things more efficiently, fun recipes to try, and stories. I like making things from the pages of the magazine. I like the sheer beauty and simplicity of the pages. Good Living is easy to read, but offers all kinds of recipe ideas, as well as good food writing from around the world. I like reading all kinds of restaurant reviews, for a lot of reasons. "I like the American Girl magazine. It's pretty fantastic! I was sad when they stopped making it, because I thought it was the best of the collectible series. You can pick it up in the dollar aisle of any grocery store. You get the history of an American Girl, but also all the fun of collecting things, like dolls, clothes, books, and food. I also really liked the food pages of the American Girl magazine. That's where you could buy the most delicious version of the American Girl food pages." "I like the Tri-K Family Cooking magazine. My mother always loved it and I remember eating things out

For today I am going to show you How to make a simple Snowflake. Here's what you'll need A pen A pizza cutter A few sheets of paper

1. Start by drawing out the lines in your image These are the steps for a simple snowflake. So basically you'll draw out your image first then simply take a line through the middle and start drawing the snowflake. The shape of the lines will look like a star when you are done.
2. Now take your pizza cutter and cut a slice out of the middle of each of the lines you drew.
3. This will create two more images. Start cutting out the lines on the top of your star shape.
4. Next, cut out the rest of the lines, creating your snowflake shape. Done? Go ahead, you're ready to decorate.
5. Now, you can either go with decorations that have Snowflakes made from them or you can make your own. I'll show you the simplest way I know.

After the Religious Offense, Palestinians Accused by U.S. of Torture - November 28, 2007

the PA police following his arrest at the infamous Narbal checkpoint. The Bush Administration has moved to quash a charge by Palestinians accusing the U.S. of torturing Christian cleric Fadi Al-Qeisawi and other Palestinians during their detention. "The U.S. has not tortured anyone," said State Department spokesman Sean McCormack. "This is one in a continuing series of false charges against the United States made against it by the Palestinian leadership." Al-Qeisawi's family and friends contend that Palestinian police who arrested him on Tuesday had tortured him, kicked him in the groin, and then wrapped a T-shirt over his mouth and left him bleeding on the floor of a police prison in the West Bank city of Ramallah. "He had lost control of his bowels. His heart was beating like a drum," Al-Qeisawi's uncle,
