Read More...Andrew Dark>Off-road games, like lawn games such as Frisbee or disc, are well known in the art and typically are played in large open areas, such as a lawn or a meadow. The off-road games typically do not include one or more local areas, or spots, where a player wants to avoid being hit by an object. The turf in such areas and spots may be disturbed or injured from the impact of objects in the game with high speeds and strong forces. If players do not pay attention, or can afford not to do so, they may be hit by small objects. Consequently, it is desirable to provide a game that is suitable for being played in local areas that will not be injured by the impact of the game. Conventional games, such as disc games, Frisbee games or the game of beancurd are not suitable to be played in local areas because some of the games may be dangerous to carry out in such areas. For example, the beancurd game may be prohibited in local areas where it is prohibited to throw sticks or stones. Therefore, it is desirable to provide a game that is suitable for being played in local areas and that minimizes damage to the local turf, or the playing area, and anyone who may be playing. The present invention is directed to an improved disc game which is well suited for being played in local areas where there are one or more spots where players will want to avoid being hit by the game, and/or the forces of the game. In one aspect of the invention, a game apparatus is provided, that includes a disc, a housing, and an impact scriptional regulation of baboon Fc receptor for IgA (IgA Fc alpha R, Sigma Fc alpha R, CD89) by human protein inhibitors. Immunoglobulin A (IgA) is the predominant immunoglobulin in mucosal secretions but it is also found in sera. IgA bind to two immunoglobulin superfamily receptors, plgR and Fc alpha R. It has been shown that normal baboon IgA does not bind to the human Fc alpha R and transfection of the human Fc alpha R cDNA into baboon cells caused them to with bovine IgA. Therefore, binding capacity of human Fc alpha R for IgA correlates with transfection of its receptor into baboon cells. Here, we show that the human IgA Fc alpha R cDNA in the presence of human cytomegalovirus V) enhances the expression of human Fc alpha R in a transfection procedure that involves co-culturing the transfected cells with human fibroblasts. Since CMV inhibits apoptosis, it was of interest to examine whether CMV over-ression of Fc alpha R correlated with CMV-mediated apoptosis inhibition. In the presence of CMV, neither apoptosis nor viability of transfectants was influenced. Furthermore, the synthesis of interleukin (IL)-6, IL-8, interferon alpha and , growth-related protein-43, Tumour Necrosis Factor alpha (TNF-alpha) and Fas-ligand, the latter of which was determined by RT-PCR, was either not influenced or slightly stimulated by
