Most of us have had some involvement in surrogate motherhood and realize that surrogacy is the most difficult, most personal, and most controversial form of reproductive medicine. This article will attempt to address the ethical issues raised by surrogate motherhood from the perspective of the surrogate mother, the intended parents, and the surrogate mother's partner. The author will argue that among the ethical issues surrounding surrogate motherhood are those surrounding confidentiality, trust, and informed consent. Hey there today I'll be teaching you how to draw a great cartoon character. I am going to teach you how to draw a whale. I want you to follow this tutorial step by step and every step I will be explaining to you what you need to do. So let's begin. First of all you need to draw this. Second of all start by drawing this head. Alright so let's start from the beginning. Ok, now do the same with the eye and then draw the nose. Same with the mouth. Draw it, then the jaw. Now you can see that's when you start to draw the body. Now start drawing the body. Draw it, right after you draw the head I want you to start drawing this tail. Same with this tail. Now you can see that the fin and the tail are similar. When drawing the tail draw the spine. Make sure you do it like this. With the spine going from the tip to the tip. Now the two tails of the whale are similar. They need to be similar in shape. Now do the same thing with this tail. Draw this same tail. Now do the same thing with the two fins. Make sure you do it similar, and keep going with the tail and the fins. Now that is when you can come back to the head. Do the same thing with the head and the spine. Do the same with the face. Now your drawing is done. Now make sure you print this. Now it's time to add some colors to it. If you draw something that is black and white it will be difficult to see details. So now I want you to erase all the lines that have been already drawn.

Renzo Racer is a fun, fast-paced Kart racer challenging your driving ability to its absolute limit. With stunning graphics and a tremendous variety of tracks and challenges, Renzo Racer will test your driving skills to the core. Renzo Racer is not compatible with Chromebooks. Starting with the race track, you'll need to select a racing discipline: Formula-style, Dragster or Sprint. But how will you tackle each challenge? The track editor lets you change every aspect of the tracks, from road surfaces and weather conditions to the car's view, handling and grip levels. And after each race, your hard-earned racing points will be added to your overall score. From the beginning, the game goes all in on providing a fun, free-driving experience with brilliant graphics and terrific variation in the racing tracks. Events I created a small app on the Web that notifies the user of the next bus that comes along. The idea is to create something that the user can just trust and press a button, and that will be done. The processing is done on the server side, and the actual message is sent to the user in JSON. Everything has been done in Typescript. Ruby to Javascript is a bit of a niche, so I searched for something that could at least help me doing some Ruby code in JS. I came across iRubyJS, but it does not translate all the way to idiomatic JS. It turns out that digging through my port of iRubyJS, I found a good part of the Ruby code. This is a good starting point. After this, I want to dig deeper, to see if I can find a way to reduce the amount of JS code, and hopefully create a JS version of an existing Ruby gem. "We are all born ignorant, that is a kind of innocence. As we grow up, we are continuously sickened by the vices, and we gradually become less ignorant. At length, our cure complete, we never know that we were sick." --Henry David Thoreau I don't know why we are having a discussion about the Knicks. It is a long shot. OK, but if the Knicks get in, you think they should be taken seriously? I say yes. The Magic are by far the best team in the league by a slim margin. Well, I do not
