Q: How to calculate a proper index for a specific SQL join I have the following query, and I want to find the most efficient way to get the correct row: SELECT @id_1, @id_2, @timestamp, @id_1.id, @id_1.name, @id_1.deleted, @id_2.id, @id_2.name FROM table_1 @id_1 LEFT JOIN table_2 @id_2 ON table_1.id = @id_2.id The result I want is a row with @id_2.id. I know that I could just do something like (in PHP): SELECT @id_1, @id_2, @timestamp, @id_1.id, @id_1.name, @id_1.deleted, @id_2.id, @id_2.name FROM (SELECT @r:=1) AS t, (SELECT @id_1:=@id_2.id, @id_2:=@r) AS s But this subquery doesn't seem to be the most efficient way to do it. So what would be the most efficient way of achieving this? A: You can try using a derived table. For example, SELECT @id_1, @id_2, @timestamp, @id_1.id, @id_1.name, @id_1.deleted, @id_2.id, @id_2.name FROM (SELECT @id_1:= @id_2.id, @id_2:= @r UNION ALL SELECT @id_1:=

Q: How do you use a belongs_to association to display data in a view? In Rails 3, I have a controller action that creates a new object named "Company". I want to be able to use an association, "people", to populate its attributes: Company Model class Company "company_id" end I want to display all the attributes of that company (company_name, address_line_1, address_line_2, etc) and I also want to have all the people (employees) associated with that company (first_name, last_name, address_city, etc). The short version of this is: How do I pull in data from the people model so I can display it in a view? Is there a way to display data from a model in a view? A: I'll try to explain using your example, but I'm not 100% sure that's what you're asking about, so let me know if this doesn't make any sense. class Company
