I am a student who has been learning neural networks this year. I have a good understanding of neural networks, however, while designing I am completely stuck. I have already learned CNN's but the question is, I don't know how to go about things. For example, if I wanted to visualize a neural network does it necessarily mean that I have to make a picture of the given neuron with specific kinds of neurons. I have been making images with neural networks, but I don't know how to go about it. Does anyone have a creative idea? A: You could start with computer graphics. As soon as you can understand the basics of pixel-level manipulation, you can add neural networks, and end up with image classification. Once you can manipulate individual pixels and draw objects on screen, it's really easy to draw neural networks and recognise objects. I found that an excellent educational website was this: However, neural networks cannot be interpreted graphically, it is something you have to do in your head. It is 0cc13bf012
