Soundtrack Song Lyrics Don't open the doors! I'm living in a nightmare 'cause you are holding out on me. You stand inches from the door, leaning on your back. Don't open the door! I can't survive another broken heart. 'Cause mama told you if you couldn't trust me no how, That you don't have a choice, just have to let me go. Mama, I'm sorry. It was an accident. You can't run with me. Mama, I want you to come back to me, just come back to me. I have no one but I have you. Don't open the doors. Don't know when it happens. Don't know where it starts. Don't know why it ends. Don't know, don't care. When you run from me, You are alone. When you cry for me, You hurt yourself. You don't have to blame. You don't have to change. When you scream at me and shout at me. When you breathe you might as well die. Don't know what you've done. Don't know where I'll go. Don't know when it ends. Don't know, don't care. When you run from me, You are alone. When you cry for me, You hurt yourself. You don't have to blame You don't have to change. When you scream at me and shout at me, When you breathe you might as well die. Don't know why it ends, When you scream at me and shout at me. I hurt myself for you. I don't have nobody but you. - Nikko Smith "Don't open the doors" is performed by Nikko Smith. The song was used in the independent feature "Livin' with the Girl" that was released in 2007 and starred pop rock singer/songwriter Sara Evans, along with actor Jamey Sheridan. It is available on iTunes. Nikko Smith also wrote "We Ride" that is used in the 2008 feature "Miracle on 24th St.," a remake of the 1987 hit "Prayer" that starred Mr. T and Michael Winslow.Q: How to change width for extra tags using Ruby(

"I know that everything will work out in the end...if it is not too late to turn around. I have always been a strong believer in the good in humanity, and that goodness is still there, it is just covered up by selfishness and fear. I know now how selfish I have been. I would like to tell you what I know is your soul, even if you did not know that you have one. We are all one. That's it...We are all one. We are all the same. We are all one, so no matter how much you hurt someone, your pain is their pain, and so is your happiness, and your sorrow, and your shame. You can be forgiven. You can learn. You can learn anything. You can even learn to find joy and love in this world, even in the worst of it...if you try." - Elizabeth Strout, Pulitzer Prize-winning author of My Name is Lucy Barton
