My code is as below int main() { while(true) { int size = read(pipe[0],rec,1024); if(size!= 0) { if(write(pipe[1],rec,size)!= 0) exit(1); } } return 0; } It must be noted that the write at the end always returns 0 A: Turns out the problem was not caused by the fork, but by a third party library i was using called abort, which was being loaded after my program. This is what was causing the problem in the first place A young man trying to find his place in the world is unwittingly drawn into a dangerous underworld of smugglers, arms dealers and gangsters with nothing to lose. Peace talks or has been a long time coming, it's clear that the citizens of New Kakuma simply don't want anything to do with the two sides. But when two strangers from very different backgrounds, one a successful businessman, the other a barber from the slums are taken hostage, and both are forced to work together they will have to overcome their differences and set aside their ambitions if they want to survive. "The world is a dangerous place, and we have to trust each other if we want to get out alive." Social Media Facebook The Barbers Eric Mieyal has spent a lifetime trying to survive in the world. His family has lost everything in a fire and he has learnt to adapt. He believes that the only way to get through life is by never getting too attached to anything and never putting your trust in anyone but yourself. The Businessman James Maina is a successful businessman with his own chain of hairdressers. James believes he is untouchable by anyone and that he is above the law. He does what he wants and when he wants and this arrogant attitude has gotten him where he is today. Caught in the middle of two worlds, James and Eric have to try to work together if they want 6d1f23a050
