A critical part of the Product Line is the power switch arrangement. The following information is based on the DT Omron 1200 model B. Figure 2.0.1 shows the power switch arrangement. Each switch arrangement is assigned a number ranging from 001 to 010. The following are general rules: Each power switch is connected between port 1 and 2 for a matched set. There are two matched sets in this system. The paired power switch is located at the NE of the mounting bracket. Use an insulated screwdriver to turn the switches. A manual switch is used at the SW (Figure 2.0.1.) of the mounting bracket. The password must be set before the controller is delivered to the end user. After the controller is delivered and the end user receives it, it becomes the end user's responsibility to ensure that the password is changed on the controller as soon as the end user is ready. This is done by resending a login request to the controller using the current password. The controller will respond back by asking for the new password if the new password is not correctly set. If the new password is already set, no password change is required. Because the user has no means to find out when the controller was originally set with the new password, the end user must ensure that the controller is returned to the controller manufacturer for another password change by resending a login request. It is the responsibility of the controller manufacturer to track and note the date the password was originally set on the controller. If there is no information recorded, the controller should be marked as 'offline' and a telephone call should be made to the controller manufacturer to ensure the controller is returned for another password change.
