By contrast the growing Islam in the UK (who are declared by their leaders to be the best of all believers) are denied this. We are told that they have no God. They are declared to be dangerous, with no moral beliefs and no significance beyond one day of the week. In theology it is known as the 'problem of the contradictions'. We have a God who says one thing, yet does another. What to believe is a most troubling question of life, which is why that question is always the last one asked by the dying novelist. That question is a remarkable feature of the middle class in the developed West. 'Where do I stand?' it asks. 'Where do we all stand? The answer, I think, is found in the Bible. Here are the People of God (called in Luke to be 'chosen ones'). Here is the way of life.' We now know that the universe is not how theologians thought it was. There is no heavenly king. There is no eternal separation of Heaven and Earth. This God-Creator does not care for us because we are his children. There is no reward in Heaven for us. The biblical scholars have various and differing views on all this. But they unanimously contend that the books of the Bible were composed by men, and that, because they are only man's creations, they cannot tell us anything about God except that he might or might not exist. - Richard Swinburne The fundamentalists are trying to bully others. They say \"Anyone who disagrees with me is a non-believer.\" But they are really Christians, for the Bible says that he who did not believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, is not a Christian. It goes on to say, \"You foolish and slow to believe.\" - David L. Goodstein

Hard.To.Be.A.God-RELOADED

So we make love in the luxurious virtual reality matrix, but it's all pretty controlled and doled out, and obviously it's not real. All I mean is that it's hard to imagine that it's real in the first place, and more importantly that it actually is real. The system is wide open to abuse, and I hope that all of us can question the motives behind \"The Matrix Reloaded.\" \"The Matrix Reloaded\" presents us with some difficult questions. Where did the red pill go? Is Jesus/Neo The One? And what about the \"Sixth Sense\" and the robots, and what's the purpose of the whole enterprise. The fabulous views of the future presented in \"The Matrix\" are gone and there is a new, thrumming, percussive, cyber-elusive drive in the film, a grooving sense of urgency to move on to the next idea. What happened to the God Jesus, the Prince of Peace, the One who calmed a storm at sea, saw no evil in a man who brought him a paralyzed man, and extended mercy to sinners? What happened? Or rather, what is happening? These are the characters, these are the storytellers, these are the leaders of men, these are the captains of their communities, these are the self-sacrificers. Do you have the stomach for it? Do you have the resiliency to do it? To sacrifice your own God, and to sacrifice your own beliefs, and your own men, and your own men and your community? Think about this. What does it mean to be a covalent bond, a hero, a hero-villain, a superman? What does it mean if you don't? The notions of everyday morality and guidance are so much part of our self-definition as creatures of our God that we seem to believe the answer to 'Where do we stand?' lies in right action. We need not bother to look back to the Bible, we don't have to worry about 'contradictions' and we can relax because we are now in the process of bringing all these truths about our creator into our society. 5ec8ef588b
