is a handy utility that works as a time calculator, calculator and alarm clock. The program works with the clock widget and can be placed on any desktop screen. You can set the time, date and the current date with the help of the clock and it can even display the previous year, month or day (as a "Hover" widget). You can also count the number of days in a week, months in a year, etc. The program also has a built-in alarm function with support for 24, 36, 60, or 90-minute intervals. You can even use the built-in calculator to calculate your time. The program uses the Windows style and the colors are white with black on it, so it won't bother you. The numbers on the time are green for the hours and purple for the minutes. The hands are silver and red, as usual. The clock can be set to always be on top of other frames, which means it should always be visible, even if you're opening a different frame or window. To get to the settings,

Key Macro provides the power to control the entire keyboard and mouse of the computer. It also supports standard mouse buttons and a few special keys. The program supports full screen keyboard layouts and is capable of recording all keystrokes on the computer. The user can also define hotkeys to make things even more convenient. Each hotkey can also be associated with a set of profiles. This means that you can have a profile for each window and then assign them whatever you want, such as using the hotkey to minimize the window. The program has two components, the main Key Macro Control Center and a detailed key recorder that is started after the main program. The latter displays an interface for each key with its different functions. When a key is pressed, a status bar is filled up with information about the key. The most important info for a novice user should include the key's name, the keyboard layout the key is assigned to and the key's function. The program also shows the sequence of keys that was pressed and the combination of keys used to generate the output. The detailed view also comes with a really nice selection of fonts. These fonts can be added to the keyboard layout so that each key is displayed using the font of your choice. Key Macro has four tabs to perform different operations. The first tab shows the full layout of the keyboard and the last three tabs are used for advanced actions. The first tab, Keyboard Layout, is used for adding or removing the keyboard layout from the computer and switching between them. The second tab, Hotkeys, is used to record any keystroke you want to. The hotkeys can be set to execute as soon as the key is pressed or on release, and for any duration between 1 second and unlimited time. The third tab, Profiles, is used to make things more convenient. It can be used to associate keys with profiles so that they can be invoked with a hotkey. The available profiles are all the windows in the computer. The last tab, Settings, is used for all advanced keyboard settings. It includes the use of modifier keys for hotkeys, defining keyboard layouts and adding your own hotkeys. When you want to use any of the hotkeys or profiles, the program displays a small dialog that allows you to input any necessary information. The program is compatible with all windows versions, including Windows 2000, XP, Vista and 7. It's also a standalone app so you can run it from your computer

Vista Clock RF

Vista Clock RF is a new app that displays the current time to you computer screen. The app is really simple and user friendly and therefore should be easy to use for all users. The Clock is a widget that can be moved to any areas of the screen. The dial is translucent and can be viewed through the wallpaper underneath, while the hands are silver and red. The clock has the ability to display the current date. To make sure that the date is displayed everytime the clock is active, the settings have to be set from the GUI. The clock is really small and therefore should be easily located at any position of the screen. Its size can be changed as well by activating it from the Settings menu. The Clock can chime at certain intervals, such as every 15, 30 or 60 minutes. The clock will warn you with a sound, if you're over your limit of time. The clock can be set to always be on top of other frames, which means it should be visible at all times, regardless of the apps you're running on the computer. The frame can be set to ignore mouse movements and any accidental dragging motions. All in all, Vista Clock RF is a nice program that can be fun to have installed on the computer. Less experienced individuals should find it easy to handle, thanks to the intuitive interface.

What's New in the?

Vista Clock RF is a clock with a widget. It provides an on-screen clock that can be placed in a corner of your desktop and will always be visible, no matter what you do. You can customize the icon and easily set it to float in the system tray. You can also change the widget's look with themes and have it follow your mouse. It can be set to show or hide the clock's hour and minutes hands. This makes it possible to see a partial clock with only the hour or only the minutes. You can also see the hour in roman or arabic style (as opposed to the default style). You can show or hide the date. You can have the minute chime every half hour. You can have the hour chime at every 15, 30, or 60 minutes. The clock can be always on top of other windows and it can be dragged around. It's possible to set the focus to the clock when it's activated.

Description: ScreenSaver Magic is a practical application with which you can create a pretty and stylish screen saver. You can use the application's built-in 16 various styles for the saver, or import them from the Internet. The application also offers a lot of useful tools for the screen saver author, such as a previewer and a creation wizard. The application is very stable and also has several excellent options for saving the project. You can set a preview picture to each screen saver, which lets you see how it will look like before finishing the project. The application can save the saver's project to file, export it to GIF, PNG, JPEG, and BMP files, and create an XPS file. All the file types can be easily viewed, edited, and imported into the application to modify. All the files can also be imported directly into Windows Explorer. If you want, you can create a timer that will reset the saver automatically at a certain time, or you can use the app's set of photos from the Internet. All the photos are automatically put into the saver's project. Finally, the project can be exported directly to a PDF file or sent by e-mail using the application's built-in standard settings. The application is a very well-made screen saver creation tool and can be very useful for both professionals and beginners. Description: One of the most common icons on the Internet, the Geo Location Icon is a neat icon designed to bring back some of the location-finding prowess of Windows XP. The program works in the same way as the Xp Search tool, but it's a lot more powerful. As you move the mouse, the program will locate and display a point of interest on the map that corresponds to the location you clicked. The Geo Location Icon offers several icons to choose from, including airports, restaurants, hotels, museums, theaters, and
